The members of the Alberta Sunday School Association will be in the Fair towns on Saturday and Sunday and will conduct meetings at Frank Bellevue, Blairmore and Coleman on Sunday and a mass meeting at Frank on Saturday evening at 7.30 o'clock.
The Sunday services will be as follows: Bellevue, 11 a. m., Frank, 2.30 p. m., Blairmore, 2 p. m., Coleman, 8 p. m. Accompanying the tour are Professor Henry, of Chicago, who will conduct the singing, and Miss Helen Falk, a noted elementary specialist of Winnipeg. Everyone should endeavor to hear these specialists in Sunday School work.

Now is the time to buy your summer underwear. Hames has a full range in Light Wool and Zephyr Kait.

What came near being a serious accident occurred near the Frank railway depot on Monday afternoon.
The yard engine was shunting some cars and had started from the station towards the road crossing just as two teams were about to cross, when one of the teams became frightened and started to stampede with the result that the driver was thrown from the rig, closely followed by one of the horses. The other horses in the train galloped over the bridge over the horse and jumped from the rig.
Several parties ran to the rescue and arrested the runaway. Neither of the horses or the driver received any serious injuries.

The world's most successful medicine for bowels' complaints is Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy. It has relieved more pain and suffering, and saved more lives than any other medicine in use. Invaluable for children and adults. Sold by Dealers Everywhere.

Mr. Gilbert Roy, who recently arrived from Nova Scotia, intends to settle in Blairmore.

Messrs. Smith and Hargreaves have taken over the business of Harvey Murphy in the Lethbridge Brewing & Malting Co's. block on Victoria Street, and will in future conduct an extensive gent's furnishing and dry goods business.

Michel Rose returned from a business trip to Lethbridge Tuesday.
For Staple and Fancy Dry Goods

opolitan Hotel.

Two carloads of flour and feed were landed here this week for The Crow's Nest Flour & Feed Co.

K. B. Hooker, of Brantford, Ont., has accepted a position in A. B.
Hames' store, having charge of the gent's furnishing and dry goods departments. Mr. Hooker comes to the town with first class testimonials as a thorough business man and a desirable citizen.

Teething children have more or less diarrhoea, which can be controlled by giving Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy. All that is necessary is to give the prescribed dose after each operation of the bowels more than natural and then castor oil to cleanse the system. It is safe and sure. Sold by Dealers Everywhere.

The rate payers of Coleman have passed incorporation bylaws by a majority of sixty-four. Coleman will therefore be classified a town on the fourth day of August next.

Chamberlain's Stomach and Liver Tablets gently stimulate the liver and bowels to expel poisonous matter, cleanse the system, cure constipation and sick headache.

Great interest was taken in the telegraphic bulletins on Monday to find how the Joffries-Johnson fight was going.

The public have a rare treat in store for next Wednesday evening when, as already announced, Mr.
Charles Riley McCallister, the well known humorist and impersonator, will appear in the Baptist Church under the auspices of the Ladies Aid. Don't fail to hear him.

Soreness of the muscles, whether induced by violent exercise or injury, is quickly relieved by the free application of Chamberlain's Liniment. This liniment is equally valuable for rheumatism and always affords quick relief. Sold by Dealers Everywhere.

Rev. J. F. Hunter, of the Central Baptist Church, went out to Mountain Aid on Tuesday to perform the marriage of Mr. Harold Vroom to Miss Ruby Mitchell, both of that place.

When the stomach fails to perform its functions, the bowels become deranged, the liver, and the kidneys congested causing important diseases. The stomach and liver must be restored to a healthy condition and Chamberlain's Stomach and Liver Tablets can be depend upon to do it. Easy to take and most effective. Sold by Dealers Everywhere.

Dominion Day at Coleman

The efforts of the J. O. O. F., in arranging and carrying out the Dominion Day programme at Coleman were surely crowned with success beyond the expectations of every individual. Flumesfelt park was arrayed with bunting, bonnets and merry features, crowds gathering in from the neighboring towns to swell the number of interested spectators to over twelve hundred.

The programme was commenced with footracing at 11 o'clock in the forenoon and kept up till after sunset.
Principal among the events was a baseball match—Blairmore vs. Pincher—which elicited great interest owing to the defeat given the former by the latter at Cowley on May 24th last.

But from the start the Blair-more boys proved their intention to turn turtle on their antagonists and to show them that not only the prairie boys were capable of holding field honors, and all through the game was a fast and sure defeat for Pincher, winding up with the score Blairmore 22 Pincher 4. Another interesting item was a football match Coleman Juniors vs. Lethbridge, ending in a victory for the former with one goal. Among other interesting features were the obstacle race, egg and spoon race, 120 yard dash, rifle shooting and a five mile marathon which was won by Blairmore's footer, Andy Miller. Refreshment tents occupied the north west corner of the park and were well patronized all through the day as were also the ice cream stands. At night a grand ball was given in the Mireux Hall, attended by over one hundred and fifty couples. The affair was the most successful yet held at Coleman, and was almost equal to Blairmore's annual sports.

CHAPTER XII.—(Continued)

Under the Wing of the Wireless

With a course, Mr. Dunston, 'he agreed. 'I had my watch and some very decidedly decent of him to wasn't it, Miss Varris? Preston appealed in appreciation to the girl, as the two saved down the deck together.

"But you should not have told

I tried to stop you," the girl rebuked him.

"It wasn't entirely your fault, though," she corrected fairly. "I'm more than half told him before I saw him.

"Why should I, my agency?"

The American drew in a long breath of the clean, fresh sea air. "We're four hundred miles away from any land, and I don't care what happens now. Only I do hope he won't change his mind and leave me here.

"I don't believe he will. You told him that we considered there was some thing funny in all this—you warned him just the way I have just done when they were approaching a point, and he he'd probably been warned till he had retreated on the humorous side of it. But Miss Varris, would you mind remembering he recollected suddenly. "Not under decks in this sea, surely?"

"No, in the Corridor."

"She's well, I hope!"

"Very. It's this way: You remember, we were to come back together on the

Northumbria next Wednesday, but I

received a cable asking me to come back a week earlier, so I decided which I am to be bridesmaid. At the same time mother decided to stay for a month with Mrs. Brookfield, in Cornwall. So, as my aunt, who has been spending the last month at Brighton, was going back, I decided to take a whole cabin to herself. I decided to cross back with her. I had to have come down from Brighton to meet me at Southampton."

"Was to have?"

"Yes. I would not let mother come with me to Southampton, so I came on alone with Elsie, the cabin, who remembered she left me, expecting to find my aunt in the cabin. But, just as the boat put off, this came in the spread-out a telegram, "instead of my aunt to chaperon me across the Atlantic."

"Auntie was with me at the last moment, you see, and she had telegraphed me to find a Mrs. Burritt on board who is a very good friend of her, and whom she also telegraphed to care for me.

But I have found that even Mrs.

Burritt did not care for me."

"Mrs. Burritt?" Preston repeated.

"No, she didn't. I know," he explained.

"because it was Mrs. Channing, I mean, rather than I. I wanted to get home as soon as possible after leaving you,

Miss Varris," he explained over his collection quickly. "So I left a day or two more at Plymouth and then came back to Southampton looking for some leased reservation. And, as Mr. Dunston has finally fixed up his property contest with his registered cousin or some way, came to the property safe, he thought that my position was no worse than 'equivocal' and let me in as half of Mrs. Burritt's cabin, which he had just picked up, and did not the final release to the agents till just in knot or two of the ship, and no time to send to Plymouth for my trunk. I had to buy a new steamer trunk and cabin trunk, and the girl said, "I was afraid that was it," the girl said, "I mean, of course, I was afraid that Mrs. Burritt would not be here."

And my aunt and mother will probably know by this time and be worrying.

There seems to be no one on board who

I have even met before, except you and Mr. Dunston, so I'll 'wireless' them that you are here, at any rate, and that it is all right."

"I hope," said Preston, "that your mother can consider Mr. Dunston's presence, at least, reassuring. Then I may see you soon?"

"Some hours later he again met Miss Varris upon the deck. "I've been back sounding my British 'bunkie,'" he said. "He is in the cabin, but he is most decidedly troubled."

"About himself?"

"No, far from that. He's really so bored that I think he looks forward to having me rob him more than he does otherwise. But, as you know, apart from the opinion he is obliged to hold of me, he really likes me and certainly likes you, and he's rather used to worry about me, of course; but now he is worrying about you, too."

"About me?"

"Yes. For did you not consciously suborn perjury, or at least condone it, to get me off? I never thought of your being involved with me in accomplishing before, Miss Varris. But 'Really, Mr.

Preston," Mr. Dunston warned me,

"quite—oh, quite entirely apart from the consideration of the possibility of your having done the little business at Plymouth, really you are in a position to perjury to free yourself. And, I say, really the young lady might have quite seriously involved me, too. For you know, the perjury just in itself is inactionable—oh, entirely actionable. Beside, might you not have still welcome me, the one who has been in the streets at that hour and robbed no one at all?"

"Oh, I said that I might have found some magnetic wire that would have considered that just possible."

"But," the girl laughed delightedly,

"now he is beginning to consider my qualifications."

"Oh, not quite," Preston replied travelling. "I think he has finally determined about me, and he will welcome me into his cabin to relieve the monotony of the voyage. For he is one of the kind who has no use of time and keep on crossing automatically from habit whenever they can, but are always yet in many ways he is the best possible sort to have on board. For, though he himself is bored, he does more than anyone else to make the trip interesting. Last night he was the first to start the boat was out on an hour, he forced the pools in the smoking-room and had the Anglo-American cigarette gag on the high-speed clutch."

"And you, of course, felt it your duty to acquiesce as an alliance by buying a number?"

"No, worse—better. I bought high and low, and I bought a number for the

for the miles between two hundred and two hundred and thirty for the run since Southampton. Now, today, the low that, low field wins, and above that,

I win. And it really looks fair to me, doesn't it, with this weather?"

"It does indeed. And it's almost—why, it is just time to post the run

now!"

"You forget that we are west bound

You haven't changed your time. Substantly the whistle started up all the deck with a single long blast.

"There! It is about time!"

"Two hundred and forty-three miles!"

"Back came along the rail, as the two hundred and forty-three. High field wins!"

"Huck! Congratulations!" the girl cried. "You have won!"

"Yes, I have," he answered.

"Still I am glad that I won on field rather than on just a single number—because my 'bunkie' already fears for me."

"Why?"

"This was telling me last night about a passage he made once when the pool was running very high—and they were to come back together on the

Northumbria next Wednesday, but I

received a cable asking me to come

back a week earlier, so I decided

FASHIONS AND FANCIES

THE quotation, "Of making many beds there is no end," and in these days be changed to "Of making hats there is no end," for not only every month and every week, but every day are new styles in headgear exhibited to a credulous public, which, after the severe trainings of the past few years, meekly accepts every atrocity as quite possible. Such numbers of millinery establishments as have started since last season would seem to indicate that the millinery business held marvelous possibilities, and certainly the average woman demands more than the average (Dilbert) considered to be the average) number of hats in her spring, summer, autumn and winter outfits.

Fashion demands and commands many hats—the one expensive creation can no longer be made to do duty for all occasions; but it is conceded that a certain style of dress calls for a certain style of hat, and while some are simpler in design than others, there are few, if any, that are so simple as they appear.

For the simple gown, every line and detail has been most carefully thought out in the individual wear and the hat has been most carefully constructed before it can pass the gauntlet of the master milliner's scrutiny. All of which takes time and skill and labor, and although the prices asked and obtained are fabulously high, time and skill and labor are expensive and must be reckoned with in calculating the cost.

The constant change of style is terribly trying, not only to the woman who has to calculate closely what she spends but to the woman who is intent upon always being well groomed and who, having spent many hours in selecting hats, suddenly discovers that a new importation has arrived in which each and every model is entirely different from any she has in her present collection. It requires considerable self-control not to be swayed by the continual change, and to continue to wear the originally chosen hats with that unobtrusive, self-possession, manner that a thorough satisfactory hat bestows upon the wearer.

Are large or small hats the most fashionable? is a question continually asked and one that is hard to answer. Never was there a season when smaller or rather more close fitting hats were fashionable, and also the modern sized hat is eagerly sought for. At one time it was emphatically stated that small hats in the daytime and large hats in the evening solved the problem, but now, with the Oriental style of wrapped turban shape chosen for the evening and the enormous, all-enveloping hat made of crin or straw, trimmed with bows of tulle or ribbon and many flowers and unobtrusively intended for day wear, all ideas are changed again, and it is indeed a difficult task to steer correctly along the winding path that Dame Fashion elects her subjects shall tread.

Touque and turbans are tremendously popular, but quite distinct in shape and style from what were called by those names a year ago. The general outlines are quite unlike. The head like is always large so that the hat goes down far on the head, and as this sometimes is unbecoming, an inside band, or halo, as it is called, has to be put in to raise the hat from the head and show at least a glimpse of hair and features.

Fancy straw, wonderfully soft and pliable and in every conceivable color, is used in these hats, and treated as though it were tulle or silk, is folded and pleated and fairly wound around the frame. A stiff cigarette or bow of tulle, silk, velvet or a jeweled ornament is the trimming thought of the designer, where stiff sprays of roses have been the trimming. The hats are soft in outline, but the trimming is always stiff and hard, in sharp, but most effective contrast.

There are touques made with trim of flowers and crown maillies, plain or figured; these are round in shape, quite large, and the flowers are of the small blossom; the crown is extremely full, with many loops and bows, generally black although there are many with the crown of silk bows to match the gown, while the down brim may be a lighter or darker shade of the same color.

With the street costume, the simple turban gown, in worn this season a much plainer, more suitable style of hat than was seen last year. Medium sizes and small shapes are the best, although there are few of the larger shapes that are in vogue in the latest exhibitions.

A hat, something between a touque and turban in shape, that is popular, fits quite close to the head, is apparently small, although in reality it is of medium size; it has a brim of hump braid or trim that tapers down the crown is of satin or silk, quite high and full, and at the left side is a large stiff bow of the silk or satin. Another of the same description has a black velvet crown with white straw brim and a bow of white straw that looks like a piece of lace. Then there is a modification of one of last year's most popular walking hats, with the brim rolled back toward the front and caught with a fancy bow or stiff feathers. This year the shape has a higher crown and a stiffer brim, but the lines are almost the same. Rough straw and with the satin finish is smartest for this style of hat, and in all colors, as well as black and white, it is in constant demand, for it is generally becoming and most practical.

Lace is one of the most fashionable trimmings this season, both white and black, and most beautiful pieces of lace have been taken from the family treasure chest and made up into lace hats that are so effective and becoming, or twisted around the crown in most graceful style.

A flat band of white lace on the brim inside of a black hat is extremely smart and the sharp contrast of the white against the black catches attention at once. Then when combined with roses, pink, yellow, red and white, there is no material that is so natural as the straw or tulle, rough straw with the lace around the crown and a spray of pink roses at the side looks equally well with a light or dark gown and is invariably becoming, while the white or black entire lace hat with algerette or roses bestows the finishing touch to a dainty and picturesque summer frock.

An almost overpowering, but it cannot be denied a most picturesque hat is of black crin trimmed with black lace, pink roses and algerettes or other plumes. Larger than any of the year's shapes, and which has been considered in style in years, this remarkable construction demands these challenges admiration and recalls the enormous picture hats of the Chateaubriots, where powdered hair, puffs and ringlets were the accepted headgear of the day.

And this shape makes its appearance just when we are told that smaller hats are to be worn, but the lace softens the hard outlines and the general effect is becoming, and it is certainly unlike anything yet attempted. Only a word of warning. The fashion is one that requires everything in keeping—the most expensive and picturesque gown, a perfect figure, fine carriage and great beauty—otherwise the result will be disappointing.

The touches of color in the new hats are most attractive and often make the hat becoming when, because of shape or color, it would not be. A burst straw with a touch of pink or with brim faced with black is at once smart and attractive and extends these same two qualities to the wearer, when if left to only its natural color the hat would be too plain except to permit coloring of hair and complexion. All these are the details that have been patiently studied and worked out to make the expensive hats of this season more easily worn.

The double skirt has come into fashion once again, and once again must the question of the under skirt or lining be most carefully considered, or the gown will be a failure. Soft silk or satin or silk finished linings are chosen preferably and then a deep facing or flounce of the material is put on, over which falls the gown, and if the lining is not perfectly cut and fitted then the task of making the gown is most difficult, or not impossible. With the transparent materials often two and sometimes three are used in order to give the desired shade of color, but this again is so difficult a task that the amateur dressmaker will secure much better results if she uses a most expensive lining of silk or satin and a more closely woven fabric, not so close but that the color and sheen of the satin will show through.

For the moment the exaggeratedly tight skirts are in style, and even when the upper skirts are full the linings are extremely neat, so that the same effect is given, especially when the fabric is gathered with the bias fold or band around the ankles. This fashion requires to be most carefully followed, or the gown will look vulgar and ugly. In fact, too many have been given to copying the original models, as the fashions of the moment are so exaggerated that the quality of the material is of no consequence for the waist must be cut to fit snugly around the waist, but must have sufficient width across the bust and directly beneath the bust to obtain the line of the figure and be completely applied. The seam from shoulder to waist line is now thought better in the lining than the two darts, and it is easier with it to give the desired breadth.

Since the exaggeratedly large hats show small signs of dying out, the hat box, large and clumsy as it is, must certainly be reckoned with if a girl cares to have every detail of her private wardrobe perfect. Even a pretty paper covered box is thought sufficiently attractive for a closet, it certainly will not do if the box is to be kept on one of the new hat racks, which are now resorted to in small rooms where the closet room is so small as not to admit of more than two or three hat boxes on its shelves.

These new hat racks, or rather hat box racks, are really excellent in a small room. Made triangular in shape they will fit into an unused corner and can be made with enough shelves to hold as many hat boxes as desired. The plain wooden frame can be either painted the color of the wood work or of the room, or else rendered still more inconspicuous by being covered with a bit of the same paper as that which adorns the wall. The hat boxes are then covered with the same cretonne with which the room is hung. A French print framed with gold or silver metal is placed in the centre of one panel of the box is most attractive.

These hat boxes are already much in demand for prizes, while for gifts or for sale at a fair they are still sufficiently original to be eagerly sought. What not planned for any special room or rack there is, of course, greater freedom in the choice of material and color.

For a rose colored boudoir, a De Barry pink moire border about the box itself, as well as the lid, with a good sized French print placed both on the top of the box as well as on one or all panels is really beautiful. A well made hat box with wooden frame must be prepared to cover, for an ordinary cardboard box is not sufficiently strong to be worth the covering. All the more expensive hats are now generally sent home in these boxes having wooden framework, and if

ORIGIN OF JACK'S HOUSE

THE original idea on which the familiar nursery legend of "The House That Jack Built" is founded is said to be a hymn sung by the Jews at the feast of the Passover. It commemorates, in the form of a sort of parable, the principal events in the history of the Jews, and the original is in the language of the Chaldeans, who were associated in history with the Jews at an era as remote as the early days of Babylon. This is the translation:

1. A kid, a kid my father bought.
For two pieces of money.
A kid, a kid.
2. Then came the cat, and ate the kid.
That my father bought.
For two pieces of money.
A kid, a kid.
3. Then came a dog, and bit the cat,
That ate the kid.
That my father bought.
For two pieces of money.
A kid, a kid.
4. Then came the staff, and beat the dog,
That bit the cat,
That ate the kid,
That my father bought.
For two pieces of money.
A kid, a kid.
5. Then came the fire, and burned the staff,
That beat the dog,
That bit the cat,
That ate the kid,
That my father bought.
For two pieces of money.
A kid, a kid.
6. Then came the water, and quenched the fire,
That burned the staff,
That beat the dog,
That bit the cat,
That ate the kid,
That my father bought.
For two pieces of money.
A kid, a kid.
7. Then came the ox, and drank the water,
That quenched the fire,
That burned the staff,
That beat the dog,
That bit the cat,
That ate the kid,
That my father bought.
For two pieces of money.
A kid, a kid.
8. Then came the butcher, and slew the ox,
That drank the water,
That quenched the fire,
That burned the staff,
That beat the dog,
That bit the cat,
That ate the kid,
That my father bought.
For two pieces of money.
A kid, a kid.
9. Then came the angel of death and smote the butcher,
That slew the ox,
That drank the water,
That quenched the fire,
That burned the staff,
That beat the dog,
That bit the cat,
That ate the kid,
That my father bought.
For two pieces of money.
A kid, a kid.
10. Then came the Holy One, blessed be He,
And killed the angel of death,
That killed the butcher,
That slew the ox,
That drank the water,
That quenched the fire,
That burned the staff,
That beat the dog,
That bit the cat,
That ate the kid,
That my father bought.
For two pieces of money.
A kid, a kid.

Green Voile de Sole Gown Over Silver Satin

A girl is not so fortunate as to possess such a box herself as surely can beg, borrow or steal one from some friend or relative.

The prints, of course, must be painted to the material before the box itself is covered. The brim can be either pasted or sewed on, the latter method being a little more troublesome and undeniably more satisfactory in the long run. To buy the correct quantity of brim the box itself must first be measured, for every hat box today is a different size. The round boxes, of course, take much less material, and for the square box each side should be treated as a panel and skinned down each edge. The brim employed should be about as thick as with.

The Next Big Event

This year on August 23, 24, 25, and 26, The Edmonton Exhibition Association, Ltd., will hold its annual Stock Show and Race Meet at which over $30,000 will be distributed in Prizes, Purse and Attractions.

The Exhibition will be held on the new grounds acquired through the City of Edmonton, consisting of 147 acres of land, about 80 of which are being devoted entirely to Exhibition purposes. On these grounds have been erected modern stock buildings, a grand stand which will accommodate 5000 people, besides Veterinary and Dog, Horticultural and Dairy buildings, Race Stables, etc., and an up-to-date half mile standard race track, the total expenditure on grounds and buildings exceeding $175,000. Another $200,000 will be expended on Exhibition buildings before 1912, when the Provincial Exhibition complete in all departments will be held in Edmonton. One feature of the 1912 exhibition will be the running of the first Edmonton Futurity for 3 year old Trotters and Pacers for which a stake of $2,000 has been guaranteed. A similar futurity has been guaranteed to be run in 1913, guaranteed value of which is $2,500. Entries for both of these stakes close on Sept. 1st. The Edmonton Derby for 3 year old running horses, value $1,000 will also be run in 1913, entries for which close November 1st. About sixty entries have already been received for the Futurities for harness horses and it is expected that by Sept. 1st this number will be increased to one hundred.

Besides encouraging the breeding of racing stock, The Edmonton Association have taken steps to promote breeding along the other lines by forming the Alberta Provincial Horse, Cattle, Sheep and Swine Breeders' Association, having their headquarters and registered office in Edmonton.

The big Calgary Fair closes today and is said to have been the most successful ever held in the middle west.

It is said that Sir Wilfrid Laurier will stop off at Coleman on his return east. He probably wants to avoid the scenic beauty around Blairmore or the blood cooling appearance of the Frank slide.

Coleman proposed to Miss Slav Town over a year ago, but not until now would the former single blessedness. Blairmore has not yet proposed, but is making affectionate at both Frank and the Mill and it is expected cupid will work soon to have all united. Unity is strength. Blessed be the tramway that binds.

As To Irrigation

The subject of irrigation has become one of the utmost importance in the west. In both the United States and the Dominion the subject has been specialized and year by year—profiting by experience in practical irrigation, laying out and operating irrigation projects, and the securing of legislation dealing with water rights and privileges, marked progress has been made. To keep western Canada in touch with that progress and to be a factor in the making of it, the Western Canada Irrigation Association was organized and on the third, fourth and fifth of August the annual convention of the association will be held, the place of meeting to be Kamloops, B. C.

The "Times" Irrigation works carried on by the U.F.N. in Alberta the several large irrigation projects in operation and in progress in this province, re-claiming great tracts of arid lands, and the many other extensive tracts still awaiting reclamation by irrigation, cannot but provide much food for thought on the part of those interested in the development of the west. In view of the importance of the subjects that comprise the range of objects of the Western Canada Irrigation Association it is highly desirable, nay, it is imperative, that the attendance at these annual conventions should be representative of every part of the west, where irrigation is or should be practiced. The basis of representation is such that every city, town and district in the three provinces of Alberta, Saskatchewan and British Columbia may send delegates, and it is argued that steps be taken immediately to send as large a number of delegates as possible so that the convention will be a thoroughly representative one.

The general secretary of the association is John T. Hall, Brandon, Man., and the local secretary at Kamloops is Thomas Callaway, editor of the "Saskatchewan" and of whom will be pleased to furnish any information desired as to the convention. Special rates have been arranged for with all the transportation companies. Arrangements are being made for accommodating at Kamloops the delegates attending the convention and those who will be looked after by the local committee on arrangements.

Alberta delegates are being urged to have the recognized experts in irrigation and allied subjects address the convention and every opportunity will be given for the interchange of ideas and discussion thereon that will lead to their very best development.

The basis of representation at the convention is as follows: The governor-general, members of the dominion cabinet, the senate and the house of commons, the dominion commissioner of irrigation, superintendent of forestry, the director and superintendent of dominion experimental farms, five representatives of the Canadian Society of Engineers, two representatives from each Canadian railway and one from each agricultural paper in Canada.

From the provinces of Manitoba, Saskatchewan, Alberta and British Columbia: The lieutenant-governors, the members of the legislatures, the deputy ministers of provincial departments, provincial irrigation commissioners, three each for all irrigation and irrigation colonization companies, two each for all agricultural, forestry and live stock associations, five each for all cities, appointed by the mayor, two each for boards of trade or similar organizations, two each for all towns, villages or rural municipalities, to be appointed by the mayor, twelve or over, two each for all Canadian clubs to be appointed by the president, the superintendent or representative appointed by him for each experimental or demonstration farm, three representatives from other irrigation associations to be appointed by their presidents.

It is especially requested that anyone having a resolution to bring before the convention for discussion, mail a copy of the same to the executive committee secretary, John T. Hall, Brandon, by July 20, so that it may be printed for convenience at the convention. And also that interested delegates will notify Thomas Callaway, Kamloops, B.C., local secretary, of their intention to be present, in order that the necessary accommodation may be arranged.

Be particular to observe the following: A list of delegates should be sent in as early as possible, and

Day's Casualties

CHICAGO, July 5.—The restrained observance of the fourth of July has resulted in a material decrease in the number of fatalities in the country, according to figures compiled by the Chicago Tribune. This year's list of dead throughout the country so far as reported, totals 28. Last year the same total was 44. The whole number of those injured last year was 2,361. This year there were only 1,178.

Important to Farmers and Stockmen

The farmer and rancher who wishes to enlarge or improve his herd by sourcing some of the well bred stuff now being put on the market, because of the coming out of the big ranchers, will upon application to the Live Stock Commissioner at Edmonton be put in touch with parties who are offering their stock for sale.
Several ranchers have already given notice of their intention to reduce the size of their herds or sell out entirely.

Most of the herds reported are of the Shorthorn or Hereford breeding, or are crosses of these breeds.
Practically all are bred for best production, and being range bred are much better able to take care of themselves than are the farm bred that finds its way out here from the east. These animals will be of little use to dairymen.

Address all inquiries to the undersigned, in care of the Dept.
of Agriculture, Edmonton.

W. F. Stevens,
Live Stock Commissioner.

All Made Fortunes

Jack Johnson was $120,000 richer when Jeffries went down for the last time in Monday's fight. He took 60% of the $101,900 purse which amounted to $60,000, a bonus of $10, 000, and he sold his picture interests for $50,000. Jeffries took a festive out of the defeat at Johnson's hands.
He received 40% of the purse, amounting to 40,000, the bonus of $10, 000, and he sold his picture interests for $66,666, making his total $117, 000. The owners of the films expect to make a million dollars.

A Correction

Vancouver, B.C.

June 28, 1910.

Editor Blairmore Enterprise.

DEAR Sir—Will you be good enough to allow me, through the columns of your valuable paper, to correct an error in the prize list of Vancouver Exhibition Association.
At page 80 under "Breeding Classes" it reads "Horses competing in the Breeding Classes cannot compete in the Harness Classes." This should read "Horses competing in the Breeding Classes CAN compete in the Harness Classes."

Thanking you for your courtesy,
I remain,
Yours faithfully,
JAMES ROY,
Manager and Secretary.

Attractive Number of "Farmers' Advocate"

The exhibition number of The Farmer's Advocate and Home Journal of Winnipeg is an attractive volume of interesting and valuable agricultural information. The front cover design, in two colors, portrays some of the natural beauty of the Canadian West and also shows the extensiveness of a modern farm home when trees are in evidence. Numerous illustrations are used throughout to call attention to the importance of beautiful homes and to illustrate the regular departments of this popular farm journal, covering all phases of agricultural and live stock, are replete with practical advice from those who can speak with authority. In addition special articles deal with "Horses in the Orkney Isles," "Shipment of Grain Westward," and "Poultry Raising in British Columbia." In the Home Journal there are the usual departments and in addition several stories and special articles dealing with home life. This special number is sent to friends of subscribers on receipt of 25 cents, and goes to new subscribers free until the supply is exhausted.

That Reminds Me

ASTRONOMER—“Washka” you like to take a look through this telescope at the comet I discovered the other day?”

Second Astronomer—“No, thanks, I only look at my own comets.”

THEY were looking at a famous collection and had stopped in front of a “Portrait of a Lady.” “Way, that’s a Rembrandt!” delightedly exclaimed Mrs. Tipson. “I’m not so sure about that,” said Mr. Gravel. “It reminds me more like a Merry Widow.”

A DISTINGUISHED foreigner visiting Eugene House in “Pamphlet’s” company noticed many men dressed as sailors who were not, as active and experienced eyes, the real article. “Ah,” said the visitor, “these are I suppose, those you call your British tars.” “Oh, yes,” replied the other. “Only Epsom salts.”

A N Irishman visited a tuberculosis sanatorium where lung and both healthy and diseased conditions were displayed preserved in glass jars. After carefully studying one marked “Cured tuberculosis lung,” he turned to the physician and said: “Perhaps I’d better have my lungs cured, but if you cure the patient how the devil could you have his lung in a bottle?”

THE elevator conductor of a tall office building, noticing that the colored janitor and his wife had been in several times that morning, remarked: “Sam, this is the fifth time I have taken you up, but you have not come down with it.” “Well, you see,” Sam replied, “An been washka” in the elevator, and every time I go up now and again Ah missen wah hold and falls out.”

A N Irish politician had just returned from a trip abroad. A friend met him and inquired to what he had done time. Mike? “Of course I did.” “Did you visit the theatres in Paris?” “Yes, I did.” “And did you go to the cafe?” “Sure, I was in all of ‘em.” “Well, then, Mike, and did you see any funny old men?” “No, I had the wife with me all the time.”

HAVE you any children?” demanded the landlord.

“No, but I’ve replied the would-be tenant solemnly, “six—all in the cemetery.”

“Better there than here,” said the landlord condescendingly, and proceeded to execute the desired lease.

“Is this the house the children returned from the cemetery, whether they had been sent to play?”

THOMAS A. EDISON was disapproving of a reporter’s criticism of his wonderful storage battery. “The criticism is very laudable,” he said, “but it is the opposite of scientific. It really makes me think of a dialogue I once heard in a museum. Two young men stood gazing at a mummy. ‘What makes him look so brown and dried-up like all the way through?’ ‘But,’ said the first young man asked. Bill replied with this scientific information: ‘In the days of George, they took the bodies, killed in battle and kipped ‘em for export to the cannibal trade.’”

“I’m married men’s night at the revival meeting.

“Get all your husbands who have trouble on your mind stand up!” shouted the emotional preacher at the height of his spasms.

Instantly every man in the church rose to his feet except one.

“Ah!” exclaimed the preacher, peering out at the lone sister, who occupied a chair near the door apart from the others. “You are one in a million.”

“It ain’t that,” piped back this one helplessly, as the rest of the congregation turned to gaze suspiciously at him. “I can’t get up—I’m paralyzed.”

A STORY about Robert Louis Stevenson not generally known is told by Mrs. Stevenson’s grandson, Austin Strong. When Mr. Strong was a little chap Mr. Stevenson liked to sit propped up in bed to watch him at play in the next room. And often it happened that the bigger of the two would make suggestions for the make-believe games, and insist that they be carried on, too. One day Austin had arranged some chairs in a row, playing that they were ships, and he, standing on the front, was the captain. For a long time he proudly walked the deck of his vessel, discomfited pirates and washed all kinds of storms until he felt the foot noisily leave under his feet. Mr. Stevenson looked on in perfect silence, but complete absorption, no doubt playing the whole thing much harder of the two. Finally Austin got to the end of his vessel, climbed off his chair and began walking across the room to some object which had attracted his interest. This was too much for Mr. Stevenson, and he rushed to the bedside and shouted excitedly at the recalcitrant sea captain, “Swim, d— you; swim!”

A CAR chase was for many years remembered in New York City. It was far from Mark Twain’s home in Fifth Avenue, was talking of the incident. “He used to be a remarkable smoker,” he said, “but I don’t think he had any taste to enjoy the best tobacco. Again, and I have seen him buy some of the most villainous cigars that were ever made. We did not say him one thing with some of the cigars which we had been stuck. These cigars had attracted his attention, and when they began to burn, one day Mr. Twain brought a pocket and asked, ‘The next time he came in I asked him what he thought of the cigars—’ ‘He brought a pocket and asked, ‘The next time he came in I asked him what he thought of the cigars—’ ‘He brought a pocket and asked, ‘The next time he came in I asked him what he thought of the cigars—’

THE ELECTRIC “MARY ANN”

NUMEROUS efforts have been made to popularize the utilization of electric power in the home, but although small, serviceable, and reliable motors have been devised for the driving of the knife-cleaner, the mince-coffee-mill, and what not, the main drawback has been that each machine required a fixed motor, which became a fixed attachment. It is apparent that under such circumstances the cost of obtaining electric power for the various domestic machines in an average house would be somewhat prohibitive.

The Irrigation Convention.

Arrangements Well Under Way For A Big
Gathering

Irrigation is the handmaiden of agriculture, and the history of the first is central with that of the second. In the cradle of the race, the success of crops was absolutely dependent upon water supply, and throughout Asia Minor, India, Egypt and China there are still in existence remains of irrigation works which by their size and workmanship bear mute testimony to the importance of irrigation to the long ago. The builders, the Canals, in length, breadth and depth, larger by far than any yet dreamed of by modern engineers, storage basins which rival in size some of the great lakes, stone aqueducts which would bear the weight of a couple of modern railway trains running on a double tracked road, existed in all these countries. In more recent times the art spread to Italy, Sicily and North Africa, or rather to the North Africa of Spain, and thence to Italy. It was the Spanish monks those devoted soldiers of the Cross, who accompanied the Spanish armies of conquest on even their bloodiest campaigns, who first introduced the art of irrigation into the New World, and from the small works which they constructed wherever they erected an altar, the work has spread all over the arid and the semi-arid districts of the two Americas. Even yet the work is still in its infancy, and local conditions have so far been the only ones considered. The result has been the wasteful distribution from the more easily controlled sources which could be utilized for the irrigation of huge stretches of country. During the past few years, however, governments have become interested in what was hitherto a proposition for the individual, and capital has begun to recognize that money invested in irrigation will give good returns.

The increase of interest and activity in irrigation has given rise to many vexed questions, and it is only by the interchange of views between those who are interested in the subject or have studied these questions from the practical, the engineering or the legal standpoint that any final system of control, administration and distribution of the available water supply can be arranged. This is the object which the promoters of the Western Canada Irrigation Association had in view when they met four years ago for the purpose of organizing, and this is the object of the meeting which will be held in Kamloops, on August 3rd, 4th and 5th of this year.

It is hoped that the residents of all parts of the two provinces will be sufficiently interested in the subject of irrigation to have delegates present, and that in the Dry Belt all those who must perforce take a more intimate interest will turn up, whether delegates or not. The program which it is hoped will be carried out in full, includes papers by Mr. Newell, chief of the reclamation department of the United States

Clifford Sifton, M.P., an enthusiastic advocate of conservation; R. B. Bennett, of Calgary, and Charles Wilson, K.C., both of whom are experts on the legal questions connected with irrigation, and A. E. Ashcroft, of Vernon, and A. E. McPherson, of Kamloops, on the practical side as concerned with company projects. Other recognized experts on different branches of the subject will also be asked to prepare papers for submission to the convention, and the discussion on all these papers cannot but result in benefit to the cause.

Resolutions may be brought before the convention, and it is requested that proposed resolutions should be mailed to J. T. Hall, Secretary Western Canada Irrigation Convention, Brandon, Manitoba, before July 20th.

The people of Kamloops are particularly interested in the subject of irrigation, and will spare no effort to make the convention a success so far as lies in their power.

Ottawa Printing Bureau Superintendent Suicides

DETROIT, Mich., July 4.—A body identified by means of a watch as that of E. S. Gouldthrite missing chief of the Canadian printing bureau's Purchasing department at Ottawa, was found in the lower Detroit River, off Trenton Village late yesterday. On Tuesday a straw hat containing a note signed by Gouldthrite, saying his body would be found in the river, was picked up on the stern of the steamer Eastern States, as she docked here from Buffalo.

Gouldthrite was known to have engaged passage on the steamer at Buffalo, but little credence was placed in the suicide note. Mrs. Gouldthrite who returned to Ottawa on Friday after a search for her husband, assured the officers that his body would be found in the river. The body is being held at Trenton pending word from Ottawa.

OTTAWA, July 4.—Col. A. T. Sherwood, commissioner of Dominion police, received from Detroit a message announcing that the body of Frank Gouldthrite, the missing superintendent of the stationery branch of the printing bureau, had been found in the river there.

The commissioner had no details to impart. It was during yesterday afternoon before the report had been received of the finding of her husband's body in the Detroit River that a correspondent called upon Mrs. Gouldthrite at her residence at Rockville, where she was found disconsolate. She was being looked after by a lady friend.

Mrs. Gouldthrite, returned to Ottawa from Detroit on Saturday. A week ago she went away in search of her husband, travelling as far west as Chicago. When there she was advised of the reported suicide and came back to enquire into it. "After a few days then enquiring into the circumstances of the reported suicide she decided to return home. Before doing so she authorized a reward to be offered for the recovery of her husband's body. She was convinced that her husband had committed suicide. Nevertheless when the melancholy intelligence was broken to her last night that her fears were but too well founded, the poor lady broke down completely.

Mrs. Gouldthrite, when seen in the afternoon, gave every evidence of passing through a severe mental strain. She was pale and dressed in deep black.

"There has been so much said about this matter, stated the lady with her, "that Mrs. Gouldthrite wishes to add nothing. She is in no fit shape to discuss the case, anyway, but she is fully convinced that her husband has committed suicide."

What about the letters he left?"

"They have been received, but they are not to be given out. They are private and the whole substance of them is a last message and

JOHNSON WINS

Jeffries Took The Count Twice Before He Was Knocked Out

RENO, July 4.—Jack Johnson is still the world's heavy weight champion. He knocked out Jim Jeffries in the fifteenth round today. The fight was one-sided from the start. The negro blocked the old champion's blows at every stage of the game and punished him severely in the last five rounds of the fighting.

TOOK COUNT TWICE

At the beginning of the fifteenth round the experts at the ringside passed out the verdict that if Jeffries would simply stay and not fight he might stay the limit. As they came up for the fifteenth round Johnson went at his man savagely. He sent Jeff to the floor the first time with a rain of lefts and rights to the jaw and Jeff took the count of eight twice.

THE FINAL BLOW

Each time Jeffries fell outside the lower rope on the platform. As soon as he got up the second time he staggered for a foothold, Johnson sprang at him like a tiger and with right and left swings to the jaw, sent him through the lower ropes of the east side of the ring, where he lay until counted out.

ASKS FOR GLOVES

As Jeffries was helped to his corner he said: "I am not a good fighter any longer. I could not come back, boys—I could not come back. Ask Johnson if he will give me his gloves."

As Jeffries hung through the ropes after the last knock down a hundred of his friends rushed forward. "Please don't let the old man be knocked out. Stop it," they called.

Jeffries was not counted out. As the timekeeper's hand moved up and down the towel was brought into the ring from Jeff's corner. Whether counted out or not, it will probably be recorded as a knockout.

DAZED AND INCORNERED

At the end of the fifteenth round Referee Tex Rickard raised the black arm of Johnson and the great crowd filed out glum and silent. Jeffries was dragged to his corner bleeding what was contained in the note left in his hat. He repeats that he is going to jump into the river and commit suicide, and says good-bye but says nothing as to motive."

Gouldthrite leaves one child, a boy of six. His aged mother whom he has always provided for, and a son, reside in Ottawa.

from nose and mouth and a dozen cuts on the face. He had a black eye and swollen features and held his head in his hands, dazed and inebriated. Johnson walked out of the ring without a mark on his body except for a slight cut on his hip which was the reopening of a wound received in training.

NOT CHAMPIONSHIP FIGHT

Boxing experts agree that it was not even a championship fight. Jeffries had a chance in the second round, perhaps, but after the sixth it was plain that he was weakening and outclassed at every point. After the eleventh round it was hopeless. It was the greatest demonstration the ring has ever seen of the fallacy of a fighter "coming back" after years of retirement. The youth and science of the black man made Jeffries look like a green man. The great Jeffries was like a big, raw, untrained boy. The ravaged Johnson was like a black panther beautiful in his alertness and deceptive attack.

JEFFRIES A JOKE

Jeffries fought by inches it seemed showing his gameness and his great fighting heart in every round but he was only a shell of his old self. The old power to take a terrible beating and "come back" to land the knockout blow was gone. After the third round Johnson treated his opponent almost as a joke. He smiled and blocked playfully warding off the bearlike rushes of Jeffries with a marvellous science.

ON THE SQUARE

Out of the sea of opinions and arguments that tolerated, this fight and made it the talk of the world these pinacles of fact have been cast up. The fight was on the square. Of the latter there was no doubt after the first round. There was no evidence of the alleged "yellow streak" in Johnson. Johnson proved himself no absolutely Jeffries' master that experts such as Corbett, the Australian sporting writer and ring expert, declared that Tommy Burns had put up a better fight against Johnson and that the black man was only playing.

SWIFT AND TERRIBLE

The ear was swift and terrible. It looked as though Johnson had been holding himself under cover all the rest of the time and now that he had measured Jeffries in all his weakness had determined to stop it quick. Jeffries had lost the power of defence a series of right and left uppercuts delivered at will sent him staggering to the ropes. He turned and fought back by instinct and because he was dazed hard.

THE FINAL ROUND

The fifteenth round started with a lurch after Jeffries had failed to land on the body. Johnson threw two blows and before the spectators were prepared for the finish he had sent Jeffries down with lightning like a and right blow to the jaw. Jeffries slipped and fell half way through the ropes. His time had come.
